Present,

Daniel Brodhead, Sec. Gen. }
John Hall, Secretary, } of the Land
Francis Johnston, Reg. Gen. } office.

The petition of Thomas Stewardson on behalf of himself and the other trustees for the estate of Samuel Caldwell, surviving partner of James Meese, bearing date Philadelphia, 5th Month 17th 1799, stated as follows, viz. That a certain John Collins had in consequence of fraudulent deeds poll, obtained patents for two certain tracts of land, one situate in the county of Northumberland, surveyed to Samuel Caldwell in pursuance of a warrant dated in 1774; and the other situate now in Luzerne county, surveyed to said Caldwell by a warrant also dated in 1774—and requested that patents might be granted, for the said tracts, to William Crammond, Edward Tilghman, John Ashley, and Thomas Stewardson, trustees of the estate of Samuel Caldwell, surviving partner of James Meese; as the said two tracts were part of the estate of Meese and Caldwell.

Whereupon the Board having considered the same, ordered that at least sixty days notice be given in one of the Philadelphia newspapers, and in the Lancaster Journal to the said Collins or his assigns, to appear before the Board on the first Monday in October next, to shew cause if any he or they have, why patents should not issue for the said two tracts to the said trustees agreeably to the prayer of the said petition.

ELLIS'S

New Patent Mashing Machine,

For the use of

BREWERIES.

THE subscriber has invented a Machine for the purpose of mashing malt, for the use of Breweries, which will perform that part of the Brewer's business with much less time and trouble than is usually occupied in the common way, with this advantage, that manual labor will be entirely saved, as this machine is worked by a horse, at the same time that he is performing his usual business, with only a small addition to the mill work necessary in Breweries. This machine is now in operation at the Brewery of Luke & Isaac W. Morris, Pear street, Philadelphia.

WILLIAM ELLIS, Millwright,
Gloucester county, New Jersey

WE do hereby certify, that we have used Wm. Ellis's new invented Mashing Machine in our Brewery, and think it a valuable improvement, and worthy the attention of those concerned in Breweries.

Luke & Isaac W. Morris.

WE do hereby certify, that we have seen the new invented Mashing Machine, used in the brewery belonging to Luke & Isaac W. Morris, and think it will answer the description given of it.

IMPROMPTU.

By the Honourable CHARLES FOX.

Mrs. MONTAGUE, disputing with Mr. Fox, who was at one of her parties, concluded with telling him, that she did not regard him three skips of a louse: on which he took up the pen, and wrote the following epigram.

A LADY once told me, and—in her own house,
That she did not regard me—three skips of a louse—
I forgive the dear creature, whatever she said:
For women will talk of what runs in their head.

From the Trenton Federalist, of July 9.

At the township of A. in the county of B. in the state of New-Jersey, the citizens met on the 4th day of July, 1799, to celebrate the Independence of the United States of America; a day, on which the Americans took their equal station among the powers of the earth; a day from which the Americans have progressed with a prosperity and happiness unequalled under any other government since the commencement of time; and a day, which promises to be more memorable among posterity than the day of the foundation of Rome. After expressing sentiments of admiration gratitude and piety for the past, they held a conversation of enquiry what would be the proper measures in future for perpetuating their independence, which they deemed their honor, and for maintaining their general government, to which they looked as to a rock for support and safety; when an old man, at the request of all present, rose up and delivered the following matters, to which every one in the company assented with three cheers.

1. John Adams, George Washington, Timothy Pickering, and such officers, who have and who do wisely administer the excellent constitution of the United States of America, and who have and who do firmly protect America against France.

2. May the Congress at their next Meeting declare war against France.

3. War with France is the course of safety for America; but peace with France is the delusive course of America, to certain injury and to eventual ruin.

4. There are only two acts of Congress necessary for the prosperity of America: the first, An act declaring war against France; the second, an act Banishing forthwith all French Jacobins out of America into France.

5. France can injure America more by disseminating among the Americans her principles of atheism and of anarchy than by her arms: Therefore the Americans ought to wage in opinion a perpetual war against French principles; and ought to give Jacobinical Principles no quarters.

6. The French Jacobins until they are exported from America to France, ought to pay double the taxes which the Federalists pay.

7. The Americans ought to exclude all French Jacobins from Office and from Legislation.

8. Infamy and contempt to all men in America, who, whether on official or legislative floors, in occult societies, at convivial entertainments, or in social conversation, diffuse the French or Jacobinical principles of Atheism and Anarchy.

9. The principles of French Jacobinism should be prevented from taking effect in America, or should be destroyed therein, otherwise America will not only be greatly injured, but will be finally ruined.

10. Any French envoy who shall come to America to cajole and deceive the Americans, and who shall sow sedition among them should find a sufficiency of earth and water at the bottom of a deep American well.

11. Let Americans fight against France, trusting in God and themselves, and France cannot injure them.

12. Strength and victory to the American navy and army against France.

13. May the armed ships of France, when they look towards America, meet Truxton's.

14. May every French jacobin in America pay annually for the single article of his jacobinical faith, a tax at least of one hundred dollars, to be applied to build American armed ships to war against France.

15. May every statesman of America, may every warrior of America, and may the hand of every American man, be against France. Moreover, may every man of every nation, from the Tartar of the east to the American or the west, who rises up either in war, in council or in principle against France, in her mad and destructive career of atheism and of anarchy, receive the applause of all good men.

16. In Amerian, may the Christian religion flourish, may good government be maintained; may person be protected, and may property be secured; French jacobinism notwithstanding,

For the FARMERS MUSEUM.

"And Isaac went out to meditate in the field at the eventide."

AT a period, when the heart of this patriarch was affected by a domestic misfortune, he went out, to soothe or to support his sorrows, not in the glare of sunshine, where objects gay or obtrusive would offend "the gloomy habit of his soul;" he went out, not to slay himself with flagons, or to behold Geon in the time of the vintage; but for a sobererer and wiser purpose, to meditate in the field, at the eventide.

As I think, with the patriarch, that eventide is the "more convenient season" for salutary contemplations, I propose to enumerate and to extol the advantages of a just improvement of the twilight hour.

At this season, as the night is extremely brief, and after days, ardent and long, exhausted man must have some opportunity for repose, it would not be safe, always, to invoke the "Cherub Contemplation" at midnight. I have formerly written a paper, in praise of nocturnal lucubrations. But let them be business, or the sport, of the darkened hours of winter. The twilight, the "eventide," of summer may be given to the lonely walk, and the powers of reflection. He, who, after morning action, walks and thinks, from the decline of day to the hour of nine, in the hotter months, may retire to rest, not meanly satisfied with his division of time. As soon as the returning ploughman, and sloping sun beams hint that the toils of a summer day are over, it will be useful to recollect the following lines of a vigorous poet.

"Come, Evening, once again, season of peace
Return sweet Evening, and continue long;
Methinks, I see thee in the streaky west,
With matron step, slow moving, while the night
Treads on thy sweeping train; one hand employ'd
In letting fall the curtain of repose,
On bird and beast; the other charg'd for man
With sweet oblivion of the cares of day
Not sumptuously adorn'd, nor needing aid,
Like homely featur'd night, of clust'ring gems.
A star or two just twinkling on thy brow,
Suffices thee; save that the moon is thine
Heless than hers, not worn indeed on high,
With ostentatious pageantry, but set
With modest grandeur in thy purple zone,
Resplendent less, but an ampler round.
Come then, and thou shalt find thy votary calm,
Or make me so." Composure is thy gift.

As soon as that grateful and dewy coolness, consequent from a burning day, are felt, a solitary ramble, quite unseen

"O'er the dry smooth shaven green."

will contribute, liberally, both to profit and pleasure. At that dubious hour, when the "glimmering landscape fades on the sight, and all the air a solemn stillness holds," the mind is generally docile to the lessons of Reason, or alive to the impressions of Fancy. Even the austerity of metapphysical morals has allowed that Castle building is no vicious employment, as the aerial architects of this species of structure, will discover, in their twilight walks, excellent materials for those "houses not built with hands." Evening is the nurse of thoughts; and whether it be lively, or serious, the aid and fostering care it receives from evening are the same. The gloom of twilight, it is averred by an excellent judge,

"Suits well the thoughtful, or unthinking mind:
The mind contemplative, with some new theme
Pregnant, or indisposed alike to all."

Nor are the advantages of an evening's excursion confined within narrow bounds. The man of business and the philosopher, as well as the idler and poet, will find an hour or two after sunset, most propitious to their respective vocations. The absence of glaring light, the Monotonous note of night birds, the low hum of the "village train" retiring to rest, the "village cock, counting night's watches to his feathery dames," all facilitate the progress of contemplation.

Whatever urges us to be economical of time is salutary; and a busy man of the world, who well knew their value, enjoins upon his pupil an attention to minutes and quarters of hours. There are certain portions of the day which we are obliged to neglect. The time of repose is mere oblivion. In the morning when we first awake, our minds, like our eyes, are half shut; and immediately after dinner, man inclines to stupidity and sleep, rather than to action. To many persons of restlessness, levity, and grosser dissipation, twilight is a dull and awkward interval, which they are careless to improve, and zealous to destroy. Through the dim obscurity of an evening hour, I have discerned more woful faces, than even on rainy or fast days. Instead of greeting the eve as a staid matron, and a gentle friend, they have viewed her as a hideous hag, whom it was lawful, by any mode to destroy. Now I think I shall render some service to this class of characters, if I can persuade them that a dusky hour may be a very valuable one; that it has no lead about it; and that if they will go out, like the patriarch, and meditate at the eventide, they will find it one of the most profitable portions of the day. The time is not so dark, but clear vision may be enjoyed of many glorious and beautiful objects. "The stars, that pave heaven's golden floor;" the softened aspect of rising moons; the gorgeously ruddy and purple clouds of the "drooping west;" the brilliant twinkling of the luminous fire fly; white vapor from water remote, and the "umber'd face" of every mountain and valley; these are finer sights than any in painted theatres, or a wax work museum. Nor is the "delight of the eyes" the only gratification. Where that moonlight, so vividly described by Shakespeare, "sleeps sweetly on the bank," we may sit

——"And let the sounds of Music
Creep in our ears."

Above all, we may exercise all the powers of the soul, and "think down years to moments." We may enter upon "high thoughts abstruse," or roam through all the fairy scenes of imagination. We may reflect usefully on the past, and plan judiciously for the future. To this, seriously and reverently, must be added, that duty, pious gratitude, the gravity and stillness of the hour, as though a general orison was heard, and Nature was on her knees, will all conspire to make our better thoughts rise to him, to whom the duskiness of twilight and the blaze of noon are equal; who kindleth, and "sealeth up the stars;" who "maketh Arcturus, Orion, and Pleiades;" who "discovereth deep things out of darkness;" who "sheweth faithfulness every night" no less than "loving kindness in the morning;" who "sendeth forth light, and it goeth," and who calls it again, and "it obeyeth with fear."

PORTLAND, July 1,

From a Correspondent.

The commanding officer at this port is authorized to name the Fort. erected on the height opposite the harbor, FORT SUMNER, "after the late patriotic Governor of Massachusetts." This ceremony will be performed on the 4th of July; and the commanding officer is charged "to do it in a manner becoming so worthy a character as that of our deceased Governor." A letter from the proper department, on the subject says, "the DEATH of Governor SUMNER is not to prevent the naming of the fort at Portland as heretofore directed; for this tribute of respect is no less due to his memory than to his living virtues."

Yesterday arrived at this port, schooner Eunice, Capt Thrasher, 48 days from Liverpool, bringing London gazettes to the 11th May, the same date of those received via Halifax. They contain nothing further, therefore, than what has been already received, the substance of which is given in this day's Gazette.

The American ship Astrea, captain Tinkam, had a severe engagement with two French privateers, off the coast of Ireland, and beat them both off.

HARTFORD, July 8.

Last Thursday was the 23d Anniversary of AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE. The day was celebrated in this city with unusual splendour. At 11 o'clock A. M. a procession was formed at the State-House, consisting of the Mayor and Aldermen of the City, His Excellency the Governor of the State, the Chief Justice of the United States, His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, Councellors present, President and Vice-President of the day, officiating Clergyman, Orator, Clergymen of this, and several neighboring towns, Committee of Arrangements, Military Officers who were strangers, and Citizens.——The procession moved from the State-House to the North Meeting-House, escorted by the Governor's Horse Guard, commanded by Major Jones, the Governor's Foot Guards commanded by Capt. Root, the Company of Artillery, commanded by Capt. Burr, four companies of the first Regiment of Militia, belonging to this town, under the command of Major Clark, (the officer of the day) viz. Capt. Cooley's Company of Light-Infantry, Capt. Seymour's Company, Capt. Carter's Company, under the command of Lieutenant Terry, and Captain Spencer's company, the Troop of Horse commanded by Capt. Allen and a Company of Boys about 12 years of age, commanded by Capt, Charles Hosmer. The exercises at the Church were introduced by an Anthem, performed by the choir of the society, led by Mr. Benjamin, and accompanied by several instruments. To this succeeded a pertinent, elegant, and fervent Address to the Deity, by the Rev. Mr. FLINT an Anthem, an Oration, by WILLIAM BROWN, Esq. and a Hymn composed for the occasion. It would be doing feeble justice to the performances, to say that they were executed in a highly satisfactory manner. We however feel it a duty to remark, that the Oration gave peculiar satisfaction to a very numerous and respectable audience, Mr. Brown in a strain of animated and impressive eloquence, shewed the dangerous policy of our negociating with France, untill that nation shall establish a government, on whose morality, and honour we can depend for the observance of a treaty, by a survey of the school in which her present government was educated, an interesting account of the effects of negociation with France, in several European nations, and in this country; and established an inference solemn, and alarming to us, that Negociation with France is an invariable prelude to national ruin, and misery. A copy has been requested for the press, and the public will be shortly gratified with seeing it in print

At dinner, the ceremonies were regulated by the Hon. Jeremiah Wadsworth as President, and the Hon. Chauncy Goodrich as Vice-President. The company separated by five P. M. and the whole transactions of the day, in every department were finished in a decent, ordered and becoming manner. No riots, no wrangling, no disturbance, no accident intervened, to lessen the rational festivity of the day; but every face seemed lighted with pleasure at the return of the joyful anniversary. The eye could scarcely light upon the ugly visage of a single Jacobin. If any such remain amongst us, they confined themselves to their own dark society, and vented their pointless ill-nature in secret.

After dinner at the Theatre, the following TOASTS were drank—

The Congress——Wise and decided measures without long speeches.

The Judiciary of the United States.——May the Laws never become in their hands a dead letter.

Commodore Truxton——Our most expert negociator.

The Alien and Sedition Laws.——Like the sword of Eden may they point every way to guard our country against intrigue from without, and faction from within.

The Clergy.——The Ark of our holy religion is still upheld by hallowed hands.

The Arts and Sciences.——Uncontaminated by the poisonous touch of modern sophistry.

A speedy and final deliverance to the dark horrors of Jacobinism.

By Theodore Dwight, Esq. POLITICAL WATCHFULNESS—"We have scotc'd the Snake, not kill'd it."

By John Morgan, Esq. The CITY OF HARTFORD—May its exertions in the day of trial, exceed its professions in the day of festivity.

By Dr. Nath. Dwight, The Hon. ALEXANDER ADDISON of Pennsylvania—whose character as a judge, as a statesman, and as a great and good man, adds lustre, if possible, even to the name of ADDISON.

A letter received at Baltimore, from a respectable merchant in Bremen, mentions that the celebrated Lavater, had been taken prisoner by the French, and it was feared, would be guillotined, in revenge for a severe and cutting, but just address which he sometime since published against them.

MR. FENNO,

IN the Aurora of Monday are the following Arguments against the Election of his honor chief justice Mc'Kean.

Under a republican form of government, rotation in office ought to be particularly observed. It must be, in general, injurious to the public interest to retain men for long periods in authoritative stations, because the human mind is so prone to pride, so fond of power, and of the respect usually paid to official character, that it is with difficulty, and with deep regret, that many persons resign their public functions, after having long possessed them. Ambitious men are fond of pre-eminence, but are not very sedulous to acquire a superiority over their fellow-citizens by their personal virtues.—Much art and address is generally made use of by such characters to acquire places of rank and confidence; possession of which feeds their vanity, and adds to their ideas of self-complacency. During a long incumbency, arrogance and insolence are acquired, and when the individual holds his office from the appointment of one man, or only a few, he will be careful to please and to flatter them, and willing to act as a necessary tool for the promotion of improper or base designs, while by the people he is regarded as a haughty, overbearing despot. To retire to private life, to be melted down into the mass of the community, is always dreaded by the man who is enamoured with the charms of magistracy.

But where officers are held for stated periods only, and the appointments prohibited from being constantly the same individuals; the public are better served, and the duties annexed to important stations more ably and better discharged. A spirit of emulation is excited in a people where the public officers are stationary. The candidates are careful of their characters, and endeavour by their patriotism to procure the suffrages of the people—When elections are annual, magistrates are generally active, and endeavour to shine while in office; being regularly changed, they have not time to be corrupted by bad habits, or to be tainted with the hauteur and pertinacity, so often the concomitants of men too long in power. Under monarchies, all those evils attendant upon the latter are severely felt, and in vain deplored: But republicans ought to be aware of the danger and inconvenience of not preserving the necessary rotation of their national, municipal or other functionaries.

To the Author of No. 5, addressed to the Managers of the Alms House and House of Employ.

"OH! that mine enemy would write a book," was a pious ejaculation and applies with double force against you in every piece which the public has been favored with—but your No. 5 (No. 4 deserved no notice) exceeds them all in point of deception and error. So zealous have you been to expose men who have no interest in their office but the public weal, and who devote many precious hours (exclusive of expence) to execute the duties imposed by law, that you really have discovered to every intelligent mind the blackest heart that ever disgraced the bosom of a christian.

First on the profits of labor.

"In 1797 the profits of the labor of 417 paupers was	£465 9 8½
"In 1799 the profits of the labor of 605 paupers was	£ 87 6 4
"Bal. against you on this count	£378 3 4½

What a glorious discovery, for a busy meddling soul like yours: the transports of angels could not have exceeded those which this delightful "comparison" filled your bosom. But these transports shall not last long. The greatest pleasure often produces the greatest pain: and now have at you.

Again you say,

"In 1797 your debts unpaid for which orders were given, were	£1310 0 7½
"In 1799 your debts unpaid for which orders were given, were	£7422 4 9½

Now on both these comparative statements you have pitched upon the most unfavorable period that have occurred since the establishment of the institution. In 1797 the accounts then published for one year, and from which you take the sum of £1310 0 7½, was for the year preceding 25th March in the said year 1797; and the latter sum embraces the one year preceding the 25th March 1799. The first period therefore embraced a year entirely void of the calamities and disadvantages which were experienced by the managers during the year 1798, which were alone sufficient for producing the difference stated above, exclusive of the derangements which the fever of 1797 produced. Therefore the comparison is unjust and unfair. In a stile uncommon for such wiseacres as you appear to be, you jocularly tell us, that the foregoing is a specimen of modern times, and in place of throwing some light on the subject which you appear to make such a handle of, you go to the manufacturing part of the business, and shew to all the world that near 30 years ago this manufacturing business began to decline, and with one eye you can discover a decrease in the articles manufactured yearly, and every year since the year 1770. To prove which I shall form a table and omit the jargon of nonsense which has no foundation or authenticity but your say so. I mean your mats and points, and weaving on hire, and sundry items of this kind which are unworthy notice.

TABLE.

ARTICLES MANUFACTURED.

Year.	Number of Paupers.	Linen manufactured	Linen made up.	Woollens.	Pair of Stockings.	Pair of Shoes.	Pounds of Nails.	Tons of gunpicked	Bleached Linen.	Pounds of Bread.
		yds.		yds.					yds.
1770	290	4741		830	380	213	4448	13		2000
1771	321		4902	1875	275	311	3176	5	15000
1772	358		5202	1536	190	306		7	1200
1773	337	3986		713	169	112		9
1774	280	3347		583	201	253		5
1775	327	3337		704	186	237		3
1776	410	832		460	189	114	510	4

Thus by the foregoing statement it appears that as the number of paupers increased, the quantity of articles manufactured decreased, for 410 persons in the year 1776 did not earn upon a nice calculation one fourth as much as 210 persons earned in 1770. (I suppose you was a manager in 1770) or else you certainly would never have offered such a comparative statement as this, to prove the declension of labour in the Alms-House, under the present system: you certainly was not in the possession of common understanding, when you brought this "comparison" forward, unless, indeed, your "mats and points and cloathing for the Pennsylvania Hospital," was to cover the nakedness of your "comparison" and make up the lee way of your drifting intent; now, sir, or madam, or whatever you are, let me offer you a comparative statement;

In 1770, when you did more work than you have ever done since, and which, by the bye, wants something more than your bare assertion, to prove the fact, the Managers were permanent, and held their offices during pleasure.

In 1799, by a late law, vagrants and such persons heretofore employed in the Alms-House, were sent to the common prison, and infirm old decrepit persons and young children were alone admitted to be proper objects for the care of the "Guardians of the poor."

In 1770, more vagrants than paupers were admitted, because the law designated that as a proper place for employing such persons; nine tenths of whom are able to work.

In 1799, six hundred and five paupers (not of the same description of persons as the population was you ignorantly assert) about one fourth of but all of them poor, the present population needy, decrepid, in-of the city, which firm persons, not one proves the great pro- in twenty able to do portion of idle persons the least work and sent in as vagrants, scarcely able to clean and who were capable their own apartments. of working.

In 1770, two hundred and ninety paupers were admitted to the Alms-House, when about one fourth of the present population needy, decrepid, in-of the city, which firm persons, not one proves the great pro- in twenty able to do portion of idle persons the least work and sent in as vagrants, scarcely able to clean and who were capable their own apartments. of working.

Upon the slightest examination of the foregoing comparisons, an intelligent mind will readily discover that every thing is in favor of the present management. Little more than double the number of persons are now in the house than was in it during the year 1770, although the population of the city has increased four fold: and had not the calamity occasioned by the fever been experienced, I am convinced there would not have been more than is stated to have been in the house during the year 1770. I should be glad, however, to know why you stopped at the year 1776, or indeed why you went so far back. If some deep, malignant design did not lurk at the bottom of your "well meant address," would you have gone farther back to look for comparisons than the period when the law placed the institution upon its present footing? As well might you have gone to the prison and compared the work of the hale, healthy, strong persons employed there, as to have made a comparison between the manufactures of 1770 and 1799. Such barefaced impositions as these will never answer. It requires well authenticated facts to shake the humanity of the citizens of Philadelphia. Bold assertions, equivocating and perplexing comparisons will not do: and, as I before observed, your drift is well understood by me, and will very soon be understood by every person within the city and districts. Men governed by such principles as you possess, or at least appear to possess, if I may judge from your writings, ought to be very cautious indeed. It is not the number of pieces which will produce conviction on the citizens possessing the candor and foresight of the people of Philadelphia; and I am now firmly of opinion that had you stopped short on the publication of No. 1. your views would have been much better answered: but you remind me of an old proverb, which is fully verifyed in you: "give a man (I mean such a one as you) rope enough and he will hang himself." This I take for granted will be the case, and as you have discovered so much treachery in your comparison, and brought forward statements upon such unfair grounds I shall henceforth hold it beneath me to pursue you further; under a well founded conviction that the present managers, as well as those for some years back, have done every thing in their power for the public interest, and that they will continue to do so I firmly believe. Therefore any thing which you can offer in future will be viewed, I trust, in the same light which your conduct has from the first appeared to me, the offspring of a malignant, base inveteracy against every principle of humanity and benevolence.

COMMUNICATION.

Sussex County, New Jersey, 5th July, 1799.

Yesterday, being the Anniversary of the Independence of the United States a respectable company of Ladies, and Gentlemen, from Easton, Greenwich, Oxford furnace, and Belvidere, assembled under an arbour upon the bank of the Pequest—to commemorate that eventful day, and at the same time to testify, in the most unequivocal manner, their perfect approbation of the existing Laws and Government of the United States, as they respect both her foreign, and domestic concerns. A collation suited to the occasion was prepared under the direction of majors Hoops and Paul, capt. Ball and Mr. Samuel Showers, at which Thomas Bullman Esq. Presided, major Roberdeau, vice-President——When internal dissensions, and foreign influence, are threatening to subvert our Government, by sacrilegiously destroying our altars, which at such vast expence of blood and treasure have been raised, and consecrated to Peace and Virtue, it certainly becomes every American, to acknowledge with the most heartfelt gratitude the obligations which are due to those illustrous characters, under whose guidance we have been led to the temple of National honor and greatness. Impressed forcibly with these sentiments the following toasts were unanimously agreed to, and given.

1. The day—May it ever be regarded by Americans, as the glorious birth day of their national freedom.

2. The United States—May neither foreign influence, nor domestic dissension lead them from their duty.

3 The President of the United States.

4 General George Washington.—May the affection and gratitude of his Countrymen, be as permanent as his public services, and private virtues are illustrous.

5. The Congress of 1776.

6 The Majority of the Congress of the United States, may they retain their virtuous ascendency, and may their deliberations be guided by wisdom, unanimity and firmness.

7. The general Government—May it be energetic in the Executive, and in the judiciary impartial; and may every enemy to it, feel its weight, and perish.

8. May skill, candor, and integrity characterise our public servants.

9. The Governor of the State of New-Jersey.

10. The militia of New Jersey, who are resolved never to shun danger, when the honour of their Government requires support.

11. The memory of those brave, and virtuous Men, who fell in defence of our National rights.

12. May the principles of RATIONAL freedom be established and revered throughout the union.

13. May the accusing angel be vigilant, and the recording angel correct in handing to infamy, the names of those who oppose, in any degree whatever the laws of our Country.

14 The Army and Navy of the United States,—May they ever continue a Bulwark against those, who would build their greatness, on their country's ruin.

15 May every disorganizer be an Insurgente and every where meet with a Truxton.

16. May the pure spirit which gave birth to this day never degenerate.

Toasts drank at New-Brunswick (N. J.) on the 4th of July.

The American Eagle, may his talons ever teach the Gallic Cock his proper distance

The Army and Navy of the United States.

May our power explore every inlet of the habitable globe—our flag ride triumphant on every ocean—may impartiality wield the sword of justice, and impetuosity the sword of war.

Public spirit—while it rouses us in opposition to foreign hostility, may it secure us against foreign intrigue.

The nations of the earth—united by one common nature, may they feel but one common interest, the happiness of each other.

When the implements of war are necessary to defend our Country's rights or resent her wrongs, may coolness take aim and courage draw the trigger.

The American Navy—may its yearly increase and success, be in geometrical proportion.—3 cheers.

The brave capt. Truxton of the Constellation, his officers and crew—may the same spirit and success inspire and attend the whole American navy.—3 cheers.

Buonaparte and his army in Egypt—may they be beaten to hard labour, and when they complain may the answer from their task master be, ye are idle.—6 cheers.

The French fleet at sea—may it be safely conducted by an English squadron into a British port.—3 cheers.

Generals Pinckney and Marshall our late envoys to the land of villainy and hypocrisy—may their country revere and reward their tried wisdom, and incorruptible integrity.

Timothy Pickering, that great republican.

Oliver Wolcot, that sagacious, indefatigable, and upright financier.

Benjamin Stoddert, under his skilful hands may our navy grow to be the bulwark of our commerce and our shores.

Drank at KINGSTON, (N. J.)

May those rascals in America, that oppose our happy government, be speedily transported to their beloved France, and feel about their necks the mild authority of those philosophers of liberty.

Buonaparte and his plundering army—may the devil soon claim his own in all false Mahometans.

Marshal Suwarow—may the old Russian bear cranth the monkies between his teeth.

The American Navy—may our oaks rush to the main to defend those lands which they now adorn.

The gallant Truxton, who only wants a fleet like Nelson, like him to be-nile the Frogs.

Our brave townsman, Thomas Tingey, and the other commanders of our navy—may they soon clear the ocean of its pirates.

No expence has been spared in the publication; and I flatter myself that the work does not yield, either in paper or print, to any one ever published in America —— This edition has an advantage over some former ones, as it contains by way of notes, the minor productions of the author; and, it has an advantage over every other edition, in the Poetical Epistle which is prefixed to it, and which must be extremely gratifying to every lover of literature in this country, as it is a proof that there are Americans who have the taste to admire, the justice to applaud, and the talents to rival the Geniuses of other nations

The Swift-Sure,

A NEW LINE OF STAGES,

NOW RUNNING BETWEEN

PHILADELPHIA & NEW-YORK,

By the short and pleasant road of Bustleton, Newtown, Scotch-Plains, Springfield and Newark.

THE excellence of this road, the populousness of the country through which it passes, with sundry other advantages, which render it so far preferable to the Old Road through Bristol, Brunswick, &c. long ago suggested the propriety of its becoming the Grand Thorough-Fare from Philadelphia to New York. During the present year, a minute survey of it has been taken, and its superiority over the Old Road, both in winter and summer, has been clearly ascertained.—There are good bridges over all the other waters but the Delaware, and here the crossing is performed with great safety and in less than half the time required at the Trenton Ferry. The road is several miles shorter than the old road, but this is amongst the least of its advantages, because daily experience proves to us, that dispatch as well as comfort in travelling principally depend on the goodness of the road and the levelness of the country, and, in these respects, the New Road is, beyond all comparison, the best. It presents none of those rocky hills, which render the Old Road so fatiguing between the Delaware and Newark. The soil, too, for the greater part, is such as to produce but little mud in winter, and very little dust in summer, which circumstance, added to the beauty of the country, and a considerable proportion of shade, must always render travelling in the latter season peculiarly agreeable.

The Swift Sure starts from PHILADELPHIA, at 6 o'clock every morning (Sundays excepted) from the GREEN TREE, opposite the Lutheran Church, North Fourth street It goes through Frankford to Bustleton, where it stops to Breakfast; from Bustletown it goes through Newtown to Penny-town to dinner; from Penny town through Hopewell, Millstone, Bound brook, Quibbletown and Plainfield to Scotch Plains to lodge. The next morning it stops at Springfield to breakfast, from whence it goes through Newark and arrives at New-York at noon.

From NEW-YORK it starts at 3 o'clock in the afternoon (from Paulus Hook) and arrives at Philadelphia the next evening. For seats at New-York, application may be made to Edward Bardin, Old Coffee house, to A. Mathieu, corner of Nassau and John streets, to B. Many, no. 48, Courtlandt, corner of Greenwich street, and to Michael Little, at his hotel, no. 42, Broad street.

Fare for passengers, Five Dollars.
Way passengers 6 Cents per Mile.

Each passenger is allowed to take on 14lbs. of baggage carriage free; but all other baggage, taken on by a passenger, will be charged at 4 cents per pound weight.

With respect to packages sent on without passengers, the proprietors presume they have adopted a regulation, which, though unknown to other lines of stages, they think must meet with general approbation, They pledge themselves to make good every package on the following conditions. The person who delivers the package at the office shall see it entered in the stage-book, for which entry he shall pay 6 cents; he will then state the value of the package, and pay (exclusive of the carriage) one per cent. on the value, as insurance, and for which he will receive a receipt. Thus, for instance, if he estimates his package at one dollar, he will pay one cent. and if at one hundred dollars, he will pay one dollar insurance, and in like proportion for packages of any other value.

Very few persons it is presumed, will dislike this regulation; it will however, be optionable with every one to avail himself of this security or not. But the proprietors think it right to state very explicitly, that they will be responsible for the safe delivery of no package, which is not regularly entered, and for which an insurance receipt cannot be produced.

In the distribution of the route, the greatest care has bren taken to fix on such places and taverns as always afford a good accommodation and entertainment for the passengers at the most reasonable rates The stages are well equipped furnished with fleet and steady horses, and committed to the care of intelligent sober and obliging drivers. The proprietors themselves live at the different towns and villages where the stages will stop, so that the conduct of the persons they employ is continually an object of their attention.—They take care also to see that the passengers are well provided for and politely treated at the taverns, and that no sort of chicanery or insolence is practised upon them; in short, they have spared neither pains nor expence to render the SWIFT-SURE the very best line of stages in America.

The line has now run nearly a month, during which time a great number of gentlemen have gone through, both from Philadelphia and New-York. Every passenger has found the road to surpass very far all that has been said of its excellence; and the Proprietors of the Swift Sure are extremely happy to hear the behaviour of their drivers, and the treatment at Taverns, spoken of with the highest satisfaction.
